I scoured the internet for weeks looking for the pattern -- and even the name of the stitch. I found the stitch -- Brioche -- and I absolutely love it. I saw this book on Leisure Arts, but it was out of stock. I turned to , and lo and behold it was available. It has a scarf pattern exactly like the blanket I want to make. One of the most creative and fun is a child's hand muff that utilizes a loop stitch. One of the sweaters contains a fun cuff detail that consists of 2 bold colors knit to create large bands I really like. Again color choice is key in a fingerless glove pattern that looks like candy corn. There are projects that use cable stitches often on large scale to make hats, scarves and sweaters. One of the dainty projects is a floaty tunic that looks like it would be perfect for warm summer nights. The photos are beautiful and inspiring.
